I have dedicated the past 15 years to working in healthcare, serving in a variety of roles that have strengthened my passion for caring for others. In 2019, I earned my Master's degree, further building on my commitment to providing compassionate, patient-centered care. At Sequoia Integrative Medical Services, I strive to make every patient feel valued, respected, and supported.

I am married and the proud parent of two children, as well as a grandparent to three wonderful grandbabies who bring so much joy to my life. I live in the small town of Trego, Wisconsin, located in the beautiful northwest part of the state, where I enjoy the peaceful outdoors and close-knit community life.

Outside of work, I enjoy spending time outdoors hunting, fishing, camping, and being on the water. I also have a creative side and enjoy painting and artwork. Whether I'm outdoors with family or working on a creative project, I value the importance of balance, connection, and appreciating life's simple moments.

Above all, I am a caring and compassionate person who believes in treating every individual with kindness, dignity, and understanding. I feel honored to be part of the Sequoia Integrative Medical Services team and to have the opportunity to support and care for our patients each day.
